

Bio

My name is Ben Woodbrey, I am 18 years old and I live in Orono Maine and have lived here for most of my life. I started my freshman and sophomore year in florida then moved back to Orono. I did my junior and senior year here in Orono and am now attending The University of Maine. I have one sister and both my parents which live in a small town Downeast called “Cherryfield” where I visit every weekend.

Creative

I chose New Media as my major because it was the only major here at the university that met most of the things I wanted to get out of college. Instead of focusing on just one thing, New Media covers an array of topics, which then I can base my decision of what I want to do after college. I am especially interested in the field of film and video editing and also am very talented in photoshop.
